[Huber, Marie, 1695–1753.

The world unmask'd: or, The philosopher the greatest cheat; in twenty-four dialogues between Crito a philosopher, Philo a lawyer, and Erastus, a merchant. In which true virtue is distinguished from what usually bears the name or resemblance of it: the many prejudices and mistakes in judgment and practice, in regard to conscience and religion, are examined and rectified ... To which is added, The state of souls separated from their bodies ... in answer to a treatise, entitled, An enquiry into Origenism. Together with a large introduction, evincing the same truth from the principles of natural religion. Translated from the French. London, Printed for A. Millar, 1736.

(Card 2)

Translation of Le monde fou préféré au monde sage, en vingt-quatre promenades, published anonymously, Amsterdam, 1731, 1733, and 1744.
"The state of souls separated from their bodies" has half-title: The systems of the antients and moderns, reconciled; by an exposition of the different sentiments of some Divines, concerning the state of souls, when separated from their bodies. In fourteen letters ... (translation of Système des anciens et des modernes ... en quatorze lettres) and is followed by: The sequel of the fourteen letters. Concerning the state of souls separated from their bodies. Being an answer to a book, entitled, An enquiry into Origenism. By Mr. Professor R——— (translation of Suite du livre des XIV lettres ... servant de réponse au livre du professeur R[uchat]), two treatises, pub. anonymously by the author. Londres, 1731, and Londres(?) 1733.

The authorship of the original treatises, by contemporary writers ascribed to B. L. de Muralt, was revealed in the third edition of the author's Lettres sur la religion essentielle à l'homme, published after her death by her parents (Londres, 1756). It was, however, believed in Geneva, that Muralt had some share in her books. cf. E. Ritter, B. L. de Muralt, in Zeitschrift f. neufranz. sprache u. literatur, 3. band (1882) p. [187] ff.; V. Rossel, Histoire littéraire de la Suisse romande, t. II (1891) p. 39–47; Quérard, La France littéraire; J. Senebier, Hist. litt. de Genève, III (1786) p. 84–85.
The assumption that B. de Mandeville wrote the present work is without foundation.

"A manuscript collection ... of some eighty separate texts, mostly folk tales ... recorded by the Russian ethnographer, Waldemar (Vladimir Il'ich) Jochelson ... His manuscripts came into the possession of the late Professor Franz Boas, who turned them over to the New York public library ... By way of sampling the collection, below are offered two love songs ... and three folk tales ... The note on Aleut phenomena, which is also printed here, is by Professor Roman Jakobson, and the bibliography ... (p. 10-12), has been compiled by him with the assistance of the Slavonic division of the library."

~~Northrup, Edwin Fitch, 1866-~~

Zero to eighty; being my lifetime doings, reflections, and inventions, also my journey around the moon [by] Akkad Pseudoman. Princeton, N. J., Scientific publishing company, 1937.

viii p., 4 l., 250, [3] p. col. front., illus., plates, port., diagrs. 24cm.

"The autobiography of a wholly fictitious individual who is born in the year 1929, and who reviews in his eightieth year his life's career and accomplishments. The major achievement of the principal character of the story, Akkad Pseudoman (pretended man), is the realization of a youthful dream that it is possible to create a means for escaping the earth's gravity, circling the moon, and returning alive with records to the earth."—Pref.
